

Northwest Indiana Business Quarterly

Fall 2007 Edition

By Steve Patterson

Construction Update

Major projects of region-based contractors

Among the busiest intersections in all of Northwest Indiana, there's a complete facelift happening.

It's been a busy year for construction developments in Northwest Indiana. Terry Larson, head of Larson-Danielson Construction Co., in LaPorte, has had crews spread across the region and into the South Bend market and even out of state. "It's been a busy year for us," he says.

Along with several other projects, Larson-Danielson has also been building a new facility, valued at more than $5 million, for Truck City of Gary, which had to move from its previous location near the Gary-Chicago International Airport to allow for expansion. Larson-Danielson provided the design and building efforts for the new facility - now based just off Interstate 94, still in Gary - with completion expected sometime in January.